

Rare Books Collections, UH Special Collections

Collection Development Policy

The Rare Books Collections in Special Collections at the University of Houston Libraries support the mission of the University of Houston and more specifically, that of the Libraries:

University of Houston Libraries advances student success, knowledge creation and preservation, and globally competitive research.

The goals of collecting are:

- To support teaching and learning in order to encourage student success through activities that increase learners' critical thinking and primary source literacy skills
- To support research by UH faculty, staff, and students, and scholars and members of the general public locally, nationally, and internationally
- To strengthen the holdings of selected archival collecting areas that are targeted for national prominence by adding complementary books, magazines, and other published materials
- To advance Special Collections' commitment to diversity and inclusion through the acquisition of materials that represent a variety of historical and cultural actors and events, including those related to communities that have been historically marginalized
- To preserve rare materials that are found in very few or no other publicly accessible library collections
- To continue to enrich selected areas of strength while also responding to new trends and opportunities in research and scholarship
- To support Special Collections' program of outreach and engagement through physical and virtual exhibitions, digitization, and other activities

The collecting methods and principles are:

- Materials are collected through both donation and purchase, primarily purchase made possible by endowed funds. Occasionally rare or fragile materials are acquired through transfer from the Libraries' general collections.
- Materials are collected with the intention of providing an enduring commitment that is resource intensive.

Traditional areas of strength are:

- Medieval and Renaissance manuscripts
- History of the book, including rare Bibles
- American literature of the 19th century
- Texas history
- Dictionaries
- Maps, general
- Fine press and artists' books, general

Special Collections continues to acquire materials in these areas in a limited manner with a focus on particularly rare examples and those that support teaching and learning.

The current collecting priorities are:

- Materials that support teaching and learning
 - Focus is on materials that support teaching areas of emphasis within and across classes, or specific materials requested by faculty or identified by Special Collections librarians who teach
 - Geographic and chronological coverage is broad
- Energy and sustainability
 - Deep and extensive collection of materials that complement archival collections in Energy & Sustainability Research Collection
 - Focus is on materials that document the history and impact of oil & gas and alternative energies on global industry, economy, politics, culture, security, environment, and sustainable development
- LGBTQ+ history and culture
 - Deep and extensive collection of materials that complement archival collections in LGBT History Collection
 - Focus is on materials that document major issues and movements within LGBTQ+ communities
 - Geographic coverage is primarily the United States
 - For books, serials, and ephemera focused on a local audience, geographic coverage is primarily Houston and secondarily Texas.
- University of Houston publications
 - Coverage is comprehensive
- Houston-related publications
 - Focus is on selected materials that complement archival collections in Performing & Visual Arts, Contemporary Literature, and Architecture and Planning, and materials that reflect Houston's diversity
 - Coverage is selective
- Hispanic history and culture
 - Focus is on selected materials that complement archival collections in Hispanic Research Collection
 - Geographic coverage is primarily the United States, Latin America, and the Caribbean
- Feminism
 - Focus is on selected materials that complement archival collections in Carey Stuart Women's Research Collection
 - Focus is on 20th and 21st century feminist movements and politics, plus women's suffrage
 - Geographic coverage is primarily the United States
- Colonialism and exploration
 - Geographic coverage is primarily Latin America and the Caribbean
 - Selected materials are collected from other geographic areas
- Natural history
 - Focus is on natural history of Texas, the Southwest, and the Gulf Coast, especially birds
 - Geographic coverage is the United States
 - Many of these acquisitions are supported by endowments

- Artists' books, Latin American
 - Focus is on experimental artists' books of the 1970s, an area of interest for a faculty member
 - Some selective acquisition of more contemporary Latin American artists' books
- Zines, transgender and queer
 - Zines created by people of color are of particular interest

Books and other publications that are not typically collected include:

- Materials that are out of scope for Special Collections' collecting priorities
- Materials that are not significantly rare
- Materials that are not in excellent condition
- Collected works or broken sets